The real coremonia anding place.

Masses of troops banked the street, avalymen sitting in a long line, with sabers lifted as "Present Arms," and rows of infantry, also at the "Present" while the Japanese anthem was played. Lines of troopers rode beside the automobiles, which escorted the mission to the City Hall, while thousands of spectators crowded the sidewalks for a glimpse of the men coming on so momentous

NEW YORK. Aug. 13.—Shots fired from a window of a Wall-street bank this afternoon by secret service agents in pursuit of an alleged swindler caused a flurry among hundreds of pedestrians. The chase followed a sensational attempt to escape, in which the man leaped from a second-story window to a courtyard. He was intercepted as he ran into the street, but fought desperately until subdued.

The fugitive gave the name of Marcus Gonzales, but said it was fictitious. It is alleged he tried to cash a bogus draft on a Paris bank for $15,000, and, according to the government authorities, eighteen counterfeit 1000-franc notes were found in his possession.

THE fight against the amessation of Santa Monica to Los Angeles is assuming a serious aspect according to a letter received yesterday by Dist.-Atty. Woolwine from Carl F. Schader, chairman of the Property Owners and Taxpayers' Annexation Club. It states that colonization is active, naming the hotels where it is said voters are being housed. The communication was referred by Mr. Woolwine to Chief of Police Fergusion of Santa Monica for an investigation and report.

Mr. Schader writes that there is a very large new registration in the Ocean Park district of Santa Monica to the city of Los Angeles, "says Mr. Schader's letter.

AN UNEIND SPOUSE.

AN UNEIND SPOUSE.

An uneind street of New York a divorce will not be granted except for the scriptural reason, but the court will decree a separation for unkind treatment. Mrs. Evelyn R. Collins—a granddaughter of Alax H. Stephens—applied for separation from archibald P. Collins, a wireless telephone haventer. He had been condemned for three years to the Pederal prison in Atlanta for compiracy to use the mails in promoting the sale of stock in a wireless telephone company. His faithful wife succeeded in obtaining his release after he had served a year. But when he returned home he was "soured on the world in general" and his souring took the form of ill treating his wife. He seized a book entitled "The Life of Alexander H. Stephens—her ancestor—and to torture her tore the leaves from the volume." He huried three her amester—and to torture her fore the leaves from the volume." He hursed three matten chops, a silce of bread and, a nap-kin ring in her face, and, he said to her, "Tou old hag, you have grown so old and hemsely I can't bear to look at you. Why don't you get another husband? After twenty years I am tired of you."

And for all this she could only get a separation "a mense et thore." Why didn't also go to bud little Reno and obtain a divorce?

CHANCE FOR HOOVER.

The attention of Food Administrator lover is respectfully directed to the men to manipulate the price of butter in Lougales. For weaks the people here stood thout much murmuring the robbery—that is what it amounts to—represented shoving up the price of butter a fow sits every few days. But now the manipulars have become so bold that some pall action is necessary to bring them to sir senses and lessen the size of their wa.

their senses and lessen the size of their paws.

Butter was sold to the consumer in Los Angeles Saturday at 53 cents a pound, though some people were considered lucky enough to get two pounds for $1. Last year at this time the same quality of butter seld for 34 cents per pound and two pounds could be secured for 55 cents. There is a difference today in favor of the price manipulators of 18 cents per pound.

When the war started the price of butter in Los Angeles to the consumer was 31 cents a pound. A year later it was 34 cents. Two years later it was 18 cents, but this month, the third anniversary of the war, the price has risen more than 50 per cent. And this despite the fact that butter receipts are just as large today as a year ago. Take the figures for Friday last and compare them with a year ago. On Friday the receipts of butter, here were 80,200 pounds as compared with 52,400 pounds on the corresponding date of 1916.

Who's responsible for fixing the price of butter in Los Angeles? Do some manipulators gather together and sell a few pounds and is the price they decide upon expressed to rule the market?

EXEMPTION IRREGULARITIES.

The lack of uniformity, which has attained to injustice, if not favoritism, among some of the board, of exemption in holding and releasing men to and from the draft cannot longer be ignored.

The responsibility does not rest wholly on the exemption boards. The Federal administration has, without adequate supervision, allowed much power to be placed in the hands of men selected largely because of their willingness to serve without pay. The Times believes that in most and practically all instances this willingness has been due to the patriotic desire to assist the country. But in some cities members of exemption boards have been thrown out for receiving bribes; and it rarely happens in any vengility that the number caught equals those guilty. That these bribe-takers have not been backed to the wall before a firing squad shows that the administration still fails to realize that the nation is at war.

wall before a firing squad shows that the administration still fails to realize that the nation is at war.

In Los Angeles there has been no uniformity in granting exemptions. The law reads that a man "may" be exempted on account of dependents. In many districts various interpretations have been placed upon the meaning of "dependent." In one district, a district of working men, of large families and small savings accounts, the exemption board with firmness has been taking married men if it could be shown that the wives were physically able to work. This is a severe test to a man's patriotism; it tries the foundations of a man's soul to know that his wife must go into the shops because he must bear arms; and such loyalty is above his tributa. But in two other districts, the fashionable districts of large incomes and smaller families, several sons of very wealthy men have asked for and been granted exemption on the grounds of dependent wives. In one case one of these wives is herself the daughter of a millionaire. In another case a husband was granted exemption for a dependent wife, though she is an actress known to be receiving a large salary—one with good reason thought to be considerably larger than that drawn by her "supa husband was granted exemption for a dependent wife, though she is an actress known to be receiving a large salary—one with good reason thought to be considerably larger than that drawn by her "supporting" husband.

The Times of all the papers on earth must least rendily be accused of having sympathy with such disturbers as the anarchists and LW.W.'s; but The Times cannot fail for a moment to realise that such discrimination, such inequality in distributing the war's burden, gives fire to agitation and specious argument to the seditious.

The Federal administration called for the registration and made it explicitly understood that men who had dependents would be exempted. It was not intimated that wives physically able to work would have to do so. The statement was made that wives without independent income, or available funds, would be considered as dependent. But in the interpretation that several exemption boards have been permitted to make, just the reverse seems to hold in instances too numerous to be tolerated.

The administration is silent except in its urgency to get men—get men—fill up the ranks. It would seem that the administration might well give more thought to getting men who will believe that they have honestly been selected in their turn.

In France, Belgium and Russia the men knew that they were fighting for their very homes and the whole population of military age was called out. In this country nothing like the whole population of military age has been called out, but married men with children are subjected to the draft. And it requires pretty much of a strain on a tather's imagination for him to believe that the country is in any tremendous and immediate danger while bachelors of 31 may swagger about complicately urging the young husbands and fathers to be patriotic and go fight.

The Times is not complaining. It is merely focusing attention on the psychology of the married man, with children or dependent wife, within the draft age and who can epeak wife out into the labor market simply because she is not too sick to work is certainly beyond the interpretation of the word "dependent" that the administration wished the country to have in mind when it called upon men to register. Moreover, these issues of life and death, of poverty and distress, to thousands upon thousands of Los Angeles families are too great to remain within the gratuitous discretion of local exemption boards. And though Washinston shows a disposition to hide its head in the sand, it should be made to sit up and squarely answer the problem and to enforce a just uniformity throughout the length and breadth of the land.

enforce a just uniformity throughout the length and breadth of the land.

THE GOD-LIKE QUALITY.

Comparison of draft statistics has proved Los Angeles to be the healthiest city in America and her citizens most patriotic. After all, patriotism is a very wholesome sentiment and is usually to be found wherever there is a sound individual, city or nation; wherever warm blood circulates freely and naturally and the heart of Joy beats in unison with the pulse of freedom. A wholesome mind in a wholesome body is always willing to work or fight for the continuance of its God-given right to happiness or to make any sacrifice necessary for home and country, without which institutions the very spirit of liberty would die. For patriotism is only another name for sacrifice, meaning the willingness to give up something dearer, And sacrifice is as natural as selfahness, materialistic philosophy to the contrary notwithstanding. The spirit of altruism is inherent in man and lies deep in the heart of all life, and the proof of this is in the fact that evolution, or the gradual unfolding of man's higher nature, has developed this quality in man until it stands out above all his other characteristics, most God-like and most reverenced. This quality is even seen in the lower orders of life, from the lioness that fights and dies for her young to the faithful dog that sits starving upon his magter's dead body, refusing to leave in search of food because of the affection which he feels for the master whose si-

THE JAPANESE MISSION.

The mission that the Mikado has sent to the United States is different from most of the other missions that have come to Washington since the war began, in that it is not asking for money. In many other ways it differs from the missions from England, France, Italy, Rumania, Serbia and countries both in and out of the Entente Alliance. It differs first of all because it has in Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary. It differs again from the other missions in that its programme contains subjects not derived from the war in Europe. It is a mission armed with full power and authority to do and to say and to act. It will not have to consult the Mikado on this or that, and it will not have to consult the Japanese Diet on anything whatsoever. this or that, and it will not have to consult the Japanese Diet on anything whatsoever. It comes to bargain and to deal with the United States government and, through the government of the United States, probably also with the ailies of the United States and Japan. It comes with plenary power and authority to close any deal and bargain it has the wit and intelligence to negotiate and, if it sees fit, to call off all deals and bargains. It is a unique mission; a mission suf generis.

But if the Japanese mission is not con ing for money, what is it coming for? Is it coming to ask closer and more active participation on the part of the United States in the war? Not at all.

As the headlines relate, the Japanese mission has come with full power to settle. To settle what? To settle and adjust all of Japan's grievances and differences and to make proper return for value received. The Japanese mission will undertake to negotiate with the American government pegotiate with the American government a settlement of the differences between Americans and Japanese over the issue of American citizenship for the Japanese and the right of the Japanese immigrants to own and convey land and land titles in the United States. In addition to that, it is generally hinted and understood that the mission will offer to send a large army, in some quarters estimated at from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 men, to Europe "to end the war" in return for estain concessions to Japan in the Pacific Ocean and on the continent of Asia. The Japanese, for instance, are talking of their "paramount interests" in China, and they are represented in tolegrams and correspondence dated Tokic to desire to have the open door in China made a closed door. The open door in China, be it said, is an American institution.

China made a closed coor. The open coor in China, be it said, is an American institution.

If the Japanese mission presents to the Washington government the subjects that the American people have been led to believe it will submit, it will undoubtedly be the business of the Wilson administration to weigh and consider whether or not the Japanese can make good their end of the bargain in the event the President finds it timely and well to grant the Japanese all they are asking in the way of citisenship and land and realty titles; whether they can actually send an army of 3,000,000-to help in the business of trushing the fleeing brasgart. Von Hindenburg. It will be the business of the Wilson administration undoubtedly to inquire whether, for instance. England wants the door closed in China; whether even the Chinese government and people want the door closed; whether, as a matter of fact, the American people want the Japanese as neighbors in their cities and country.

After weighing and considering all these matters the thought may occur to the administration: "Why has the mission come lence he cannot understand. In man this spirit reaches an exalted position, culminating in the mystery of the Cross, the inspiration of all loving service. Call it a higher form of selfishness, if you will, but the fact remains the same; it is the imnate nobility in man leading him to lottler heights and to more abundant life. And this is patriotism and this is the spirit that slowly but surely is working for the downfall of despotism everywhere and that shall finally make all men free indeed.

A FOLLETTE SHOULD BE-EXPELLED.
Pacificism has been organized into a political party in Wisconsin. Senator La Foliette, in his biography, accused Gov. Philip of being a railroad lobbyist and manipulator of legislative votes. Now the Senator is actively supporting the Governor for a third term on the platform of being against the United States' course in the war and its alignment with the Allies.
The new party will place in the field Congressional candidates who are against conscription, against war loans and for peace just as soon as it can be written. This-is in line with the call sounded lately by Senator La Foliette in his weekly, published at Madison. In a signed article he urged that the anti-war forces everywhere should get into the field with Congressional candidates pledged to the repeal of the candidates pledged to the repeal of the conscription law and the blocking of the government's course in the war.

La Pollette's strong personality will not, it is predicted, be able to hold his followers to his traitorous programme. W. S. Goodland, who has been his most influential follower, now says: "Every fair-minded man accorded La Follette the right to oppose the entry of this country into the war with Germany.

of La Follette the right to oppose the entry of this country into the war with Germany, and while many did not agree with him, they recognised his right to an individual opinion. But now that war has been committed to the issue, his loyal supporters are fully justified in expecting, him to render loyal support to the nation's cause and to give his utmost in service to arm and equip the country's military forces and to aid in securing victory to its arms. Instead, they have witnessed a course of carping criticism, fault-finding and technical objecting that is anything but loyal support of a nation and that stands for everything but broad statesmanship."

In the June issue of "La Follette's" the pacifist Senator proclaims that this nation has no special grievance of its own against Germany. In other words, he charges that the United States is the aggressor and that Germany has not given us cause for war. After nearly three years of offensive against American lives and property; after breach after breach of promises to obey international law and respect American rights; after three years of brutal and inhuman warfare against noncombatants and innocents without parallel in the annals of history, it is inconceivable how an American statesman in this land of liberty could give utterance to such a statement. His present attitude toward the national government and the conduct of the war should secure La Follette's prompt expulsion from the Senate of the United States and his punishment for treason in "giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States."

THE SEA IS NOT FREE.

BY P. A. VAILE, of "Wake Up, Engl "America's Peril," etc.

THE freedom of the seas" is a phrase that one cannot escape, but it is a misnomer. If there is anything that is not free, even for a bath, except in isolated portions of the coast, it is the sea. Not only is the sea not free, but, as a matter of actual business, there are put on it enumers still that are practically prohibitive to countless millions of those who would like to use freely this greatest of all natural highways.

The toils that have been levied on "those who go down to the sea in ships" have been, in the main, prohibitive for time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, yet so slowly do we progress, so cumbrous and conventional are our mental processes, that it is left for the strain and test of war to bring home to us how grievously governments, and heads of nations generally, fall in their duty to their citizens.

The individual has been blad and

The individual has been bled and plifered on the high seas by the common carriers thereof for centuries. They have charged exorbitant rates and rendered for them, most particularly to the poorer people, a disgusting and inadequate return; and because the pinch was on the foot of the individual the statesmen of the world did nothing. They allowed, and have for many years allowed, men, wemen and children to be fed, housed and carried in a manner that in these days of advanced sanitary science, cannot be considered fit for animals, let alone human beings. This is had escouth when the journey is merely a few days and in cool weather, but it is simply awful when the incarceration is for a month or air weeks, and a considerable portion of that time is spent in the tropics.

But something has recently happened that may see long tend to make "the freedom of the seas" more than a vague political catchword. The governmental toes of the nations have been plached and stamped on in such a manner that the governments could not fall to notice it.

So now we read the American and British governments have agreed upon the necessity of regulating occan steamship rates between the United States and Allied nations. It is stated that the "principle" has been recognized and that now high officers of various state departments and of the British Admiralty, are about to devise a programme to put their principles into effect and so to reduce the present prohibitive rates. But, although the traveling and trading public has been "bled" for years we do not recall ever having heard of the government of any country taking steps to prevent it. It required the test of war to make governments see and feel the pinch of the shoe that, nevertheless, has been there, restricting legitimate trade and expansion for many years.

It is stated that France and Italy have said that they are propared to cooperate with the United States and the British Empire had made arrangements to pool all the leading British shipping lines in order to avoid the authors of

are to come "after the war is over," and affect not ships only, but many other international "public utilities."

If this surmise should be correct, then indeed might we see armething approximating to "The Preadom of the Seas, "when a great international pool of shipping may as naturally come into existence as have government rallways in European countries. In this way it seems that the extortion on the high seas that is now rampant may in the end be productive of good and make the sea what it was intended to be, the greatest, cheapest and freest highway in the world and the greatest of all means of communication between nations, instead of, as now, one of the great-out barriers in the world.

RIPPLING RHYMES. APTER THE WAR.

Won't the aid world seem just apleedid when this dreary war is ended, when we hang our swords and shotswas up behind the kitchen door? And I hope, when done with siaying, we'll devote our time to having, that the thunder of the captains may be heard on earth no mere. All the world should be disarming, and the kings should turn to farming, when the dove with snowy pinions in our view sgain seperars: for we've had enough of sisughter and of blood that flows like water—what we've had should satisfy us for at least a million years. But the war must drag on further, with its dreary wholesale murther, with its dreary wholesale murther, with its endless, useless horrors till the Kalser has been canned; till the Kron Prins, smashed and zory, says he's had enough of glory, and the sword of wrath has fallen from the royal madman's hand. Then, when there's no longer tidings of the captain and his ridings, and the pawing, neighing warhorse has to haul the farmer's plow, this old world will be alluring, with a peace that is enduring, this old world that is so weary and so horror-ridden now.
